DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Katsura et al. [US 6489874].

Katsura discloses a primary winding L1 connected to power supply 140, a secondary winding L2, magnetic core of primary core 111 and secondary 211 core, in rectangle shape, with first and secondary windings respectively, the cores are magnetically connected together by putting them in contact/close proximity and separated each other when disconnected [figure 1].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 4-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Katsura et al. in view of Ono et al. [US 6075433].

Katsura discloses the invention as claimed as cited above except for the primary and secondary windings concentrically overlapped when connector is contacted and the core being made of ferrite. Ono discloses in the prior art figure 10(a) the primary winding 2 and secondary winding 6 are concentrically overlapped and the core being made of ferrite [abstract]. At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to position the windings as taught by Ono to Katsura to provide alternate winding arrangement of the connector. Therefore, it would have been obvious to combine Ono with Katsura.

5. Claims 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Katsura et al. in view of Wantanabe et al. [US 5907231].

Katsura discloses the invention as claimed as cited above except for the primary winding and secondary winding molded separately in plastic resin. Wantanabe discloses the secondary core 21 and the secondary coil 22 are housed in a protective case made of synthetic resin [column 3, lines 48-50]. At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to use synthetic resin housing as taught by Wantanabe to Katsura. The motivation would have been to provide protection for the unit. Therefore, it would have been obvious to combine Wantanabe with Katsura.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Hulsey [US 5264776]; Studer et al. [US 4321572]; Kiedrowski [US 4754180].
